2 significant, and sometimes life-shattering, impacts on victims, survivors, and communities; and

3 WHEREAS, Delivering true justice requires that all victims are provided with the support 4 they need; and

5 WHEREAS, Barriers that prevent many survivors from receiving the services they need 6 and the justice they deserve still exist with many violent crimes, including rape and sexual 7 assault, often going unreported to law enforcement because, among other concerns, victims fear 8 placing themselves in further danger and from negative interactions with the criminal justice 9 system; and

10 WHEREAS, The inequality of victimization and surge in hate crimes faced by 11 historically marginalized groups including communities of color, Native American communities, 12 the LGBTQI+ community, the Asian American community, and the Jewish community needs to 13 be more fully addressed; and

15 suffer a serious economic toll as well; and

16 WHEREAS, Helping those who have experienced crime and their families is an 17 important step toward the protection of and support for victims' rights. Dedicated professionals 18 have worked to develop support and services for survivors that are more holistic, trauma-19 informed, and effective at overcoming systemic barriers that certain communities face in

1 prosecuting offenders and obtaining justice; and

2 WHEREAS, More work remains to be done to advance these goals and National Crime
3 Victims' Rights Week provides an opportunity to raise awareness for our commitment to
